What the People Say About DR. R. G. FLOWR'

REMEDIES March, 1885.

Flower Medicine Co., Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:—For some four years past I have suffered from dyspepsia, rendering me very miserable. Almost everything I ate disagreed with me, and there was no one thing that I could eat feeling sure that it would agree with me. About two months ago I made up my mind to try your Liver and Stomach Sanative. Previous to this I had been treated by physicians, and had also tried about every preparation on the market without benefit.

I have now taken five bottles of the Sanative and am feeling like a different person. I eat with a relish anything my appetite craves, and never experience the least distress or inconvenience.

I approached a lobeter salad the other day with fear and trembling, but after eating it did not feel any discomfort. I relish my food and it always agrees with me and my general health is better than it has been for years.

BURSTING WATERSPOUT. The Damage Caused in Texas Greater Than First Reported. Than First Reported.

Et Paso, Jax., June 9.—Further particulars of the fearful waterspout which burst over New Leges, Mex., on the 6th inst., were received to-night. The loss of life proves greater than at first reported. At Pueblo Cuarantus the rushing waters in a few minutes rose to a hight of 25 feet, and this great flood swept everything before and at that place alone over 20 lives were lost. Great distress prevails and 20 lives were lost. Great distress prevails and immediate relief is greatly needed. Particu-lars from other points have not yet been recaived. The large city of Gusajuota was flooded also by a tremendous waterspout which did fearful damage. Thr waterspout burst at a point about a mile below the city and in a few minutes the rushing waters to a depth of six feet and covered the very centre of the city. A complimentary performance in honor of the Governor and ex-President Manual of the Governor and ex-President Manual Gonzales was in progrees at the theatre at the time the spout burst and the building was crowded with the clite of the city. When the alarm sounded at about 10.30 o'clock, a wild panic ensued in the theatre. Ladies fainted, and all seemed crazed with fear. Everyone rushed for the door, trampling the weak under foot. The scene was indescribable. Many persons were fatally injured, and the damage is estimated at over $100,000. It is not known how many lives were lost.

RIEL AT REGINA.

Report that the Rebel is Cruelly Treated in Prison. OTTAWA, Oat., June 9 .- Hon. Wilfred Laurier, French Canadian, drew the attention of the government in the House yesterday to the cruel treatment Riel is reported to have suffered since his incarceration at Regina. He thought there was no necessity that he should be manacled in irons, which chain and ball attached to his ankle. This could only be justicated. field in very rare circumstances, and then only when indispensable. He thought the treat-ment was not justified, and he hoped the government would look toto the matter and not inflict upon him any more restraint than was necessary. Sir John MacDonald drew attention to the great lack of safe imprisonment at Regina, but would telegraph at once and ascer-tain if Riel was subject to greater restraint than was necessary to secure his safe custody, and if he was, he would have the matter righted.

BASE BALL.

Eastern New England League. LAWRENCES 8, PORTLANDS 3. The Portlands met another defeat at the hands of the Lawrences yesterday, and the game showed the er inability of the nine to do acceptable fielding. Up to the seventh inning the visitors failed to hit Weidel to any great extent, and everything went smoothly in favor of the Portlands, but then Weidel weakened, or the Lawrences got on to his pitching, and the game was lost. The Portlands had an opportunity to do some fielding, and could not improve it. In other words, as long as Weidel player the game it was all right, but when the rest of the team were given chances they showed their peculia ability of losing them. Wheelook had an off day, and his playing on second base was not up to his nsual standard. Doe, the new man, played fairly well in the field, but could not do anything at the bat. Soldiers' Home, Togus, June 5, 1885.

I was very much surprised to read in your issue of today a letter under date of June 4th to the Postmaster-General, from one Thomas J. Lynch, secretary of the Democratic Kennebec County Committee, informing the public that the Democrats of Kennebec county were "dumbfounded at the appointment of John Kirk, a partisan Republican, as postmaster at Togus." Will you please inform the inmates of this Home what right Mr. Lynch has to interfere with the appointment of a postmaster at the Soldiers' Home, or what rights the democratic party of Kennebec county have in the matter? The post office at Togus is a post office at the Soldiers' Home. When the office was established Gen. W. S. Tilton was appointed postmaster; when he left the home Col. A. J. Smith was appointed. Under the administration of both these gentiewhen he left the home Col. A. J. Smith was appointed, when he left the home Col. A. J. Smith was appointed. Under the administration of both these gentlemen an assistant postmaster performed the entire work of the office. It is understood that Col. Cobaugh, the now treasurer, inasmuch as an assistant was performing the entire work, declined to take the office, and receive pay while another was to do the service. It is understood that Gen. Franklin, whose Democracy not even Mr. Lynch can question, and other managers of the Home, recommended the appointment of Mr. Kirk; and Mr. Lynch has simply written himself down an ass in his letter to the Postmaster-General. By the way, Mr. Editor, is this the same Mr. Lynch, who it is said will be appointed assistant postmaster of Augusta, if the Boston Post's gailant Col. C. B. Morton is appointed postmaster? Perhaps Gen. Vitas would like to have this question answered. This letter of Mr. Lynch is the first intimation that politics is to enter into the management of the Soldiers' Homes.

The president, Dr. T. A. Foster then delivered his address, a valuable statistical paper they may go for the protection of our national bearing upon the relations of the medical profession to the other professions and the community at large. He considered the relation of this association to practitioners, not members, only 257 about 1-3 the whole number belong to this association. Some effective measures to increase the membership should be made.

Relations to apothecaries: in the city the apothecary is a luxury. With the present system of patent and proprietary medicine it will soon be necessary to dispense our own medicines or secure apothecaries who will do only a prescription business. With reference to medica institutions of instruction, the speaker believed we should as a society insist upon a thorough English education. Fees for graduation should be abolished. The standard should be steadily raised. The removal of the should be steadily raised. The removal of the Maine Medical School to Portland was strenuously urged. In legal relations, expert testimony should be called by the Court. Physicians should never permit themselves to become participant.

come partisans.

The proper place to secure medical legislalation is at home and not in the lobby.

Our relations with the press are peculiar,
Love of humbug, startling news by the community, compels the press to act from a business point of view.

The whole secret of our relations to the members of other schools is to act the gentleman always. The relations to the general public were considered under three heads of the medical profession, the rich, the honest poor, and the criminal class.

From the rich we should exact a full and fair compensation; from the honest poor, be ome partisans.

fair compensation; from the honest poor, be not too eager to exact the pound of flesh, but act with humanity; with the multitude of socalled mistaken philanthropists, in contact with the criminal classes, the community is as surely cultivating crime and law breaking as the farmer cultivates his crops. The medical profession has an interest to regulate the prop-agation of crime, if we cannot check it. The duty of the profession to the curses of opium and alcohol is to handle and administer these agents only in accordance with strict cientific requirements.

Dr. Foster's address was one of the most practical and thoroughly common sense papers ever presented to this association. The rela-tions of the medical profession to various social questions and the various trades and social questions and the various trades and professions were shown by carefully prepared tables. No abstract can begin to render its true worth, and in the published transactions of the association it will form a valuable chapter. The thanks of the association were tendered Dr. Fester, and a special committee, consisting of Drs. Bates, A. J. Fuller and S. H. Weeks, was appointed to consider and report upon the recommendations made.

Dr. J. A. Spalding explained a plan for forming in the Maine Medical Association a mutual aid association. This was referred to a special committee, consisting of Drs Spalding and Gerrish of Portland, and Wedgwood of Lewiston.

This provoked a long and spirited discussion, the general tendency of which was against the spirit of the resolution, and to the end that as an association the adoption of the resolution would be premature. Finally on motion, it was laid upon the table. Dr. I. T. Dana read a paper descriptive of Bright's disease, its pathology, causes and more especially treatment. Special attention should be paid to relieving the kidneys by encouraging the functions of the skin, the lungs and the bowels. A NEW PARTINAN NAVY.

The Hon. W. E. Chandler Stakes His Vate on the Success of the Four Cruisers.

(His speech to the Amoskeag Veterans at Concord.) Now a word in behalf of a national institution upon which my thoughts have of late been engaged—the American navy. I plead for non-partisanship in reference to this as well as the militia, the regular army, and every other subject which concerns the national safe ty and honor at home or abroad. About two years ago the National Congress decided to cease building wooden vessels of war, and authorized the construction of a fleet despatch boat, to carry one effective modern heavy rified gun and the appropriate number of machine cannon, and of these large war cruisers with full batteries, all to be built of steel made in America, and in accordance, in hull, machinery, equipment, and armament, with the best types of vessels constructed by the great naval powers of the world.

The ships were carefully designed by the best talent in the country, within or without the navy; and the contracts were advertised and let by contract to the lowest bidder. One of them, the despatch boat, the Dolphin, has been finished, and after trials under unfavorable circumstances has more than fulfilled every expectation. The cruisers, the Boston, Atlanta and Chicago, are also nearly ready for trial. I hazard the prediction, and am willing to stake my fate upon the result, that all four of the ships will prove successful in every respect; war vessels of which the country will be proud, and which will compare favorably with the best ships of any nation.

broad, and which will compare favorably with

There has been, however, I have regretted to notice, in the newspaper press a disposition to treat these ships from a partisan standpoint; and the first ship, the Dolphin, has been mere cliestly ridiculed, without cause, up to the time of her last and saccessful trial trip, site out of naval construction and naval management. Consider the effect upon national interests of the disposition which has been manifested, if it is to continue. Are the Dolphin, Boston, Atlanta and Chicago to be called Republican ships and for that reason condemned and the ships which Secretary Whitney is to buil be called Democratic Alips and be in turn by Republicans ridiculed and denounced? Congress attacked to the Royal Guards. Thinking this a good opportunity he immediately applied for the situation. The band master elaborate them in advance because they are proposed by a Democratic Administration, all the Republicans denounced them in advance because they are proposed by the hoarse croak of the narrow-minded partition, all the Republicans of the House and Senate cheerfully and heartily roted. Let the great work go on without being hindered by the hoarse croak of the narrow-minded partition, all the Republicans of the House and Senate cheerfully and heartily roted. Let the great work go on without being hindered by the hoarse croak of the narrow-minded partition, all the Republicans of the double and successful; that the could fill the place.

As is usual however in caucuses especially of the Democratic strife somebody was dissatisfied; one speaker, said to be an eleventh hour candidate himself, is reported to have declared that the caucus amounted to nothing as its decision was not final. This was paying a left-handed compliment to his Congressional candidate—thereby intimating that he would go back upon his word and oppose this strong expression of his own party's preference. This was more than any Republican would venture to assert. If the Republicans were merely partisans they would rejolec to see a continuation of the wrangles and bitterness which have demoralized the Democrats here for the last six months, but good men, peace men, law and order men as they all are, out of the fullness of their hearts, they suggest to their erring brethern as a allying cry "Harmon and Harmouy."

Maine's Wizard Bugler.

Famous Man of Norway-Ned Kendali and His Pumpkin Vine-How He Twist ed the Tail of the British Lion.

Ned Kendall, the famous buglist, was born in Norway, Maine. A Norway Advertiser correspondent says when a very small boy he made him a bugle of a pumpkin vine on which he could perform several airs, among which was the famous Tecumseh Quickstep. This feat so delighted and astonished the neighbors that the little fellow soon became quite a hero and the people came for miles around to listen to and admire his performances. This instrument was of course short lived though he managed to keep it in a brook when not in use. He then from a piece of reed given him made a flute on which he soon became a skillful performer. Some claim that he was born in Windham Maine, but this is a mistake, as we had it Woodup Quickstep was presented. This piece, as many of our readers will recollect, was one of Ned's choice productions, con-taining a solo very difficult to perform, but when rendered in a tasty manner was listened to with rapture by every musical ear. This solo was assigned to the first clarionet, as it was considered too difficult for any bugler in England. The clarionet player began the solo several times, but as often broke down and with an oath exclaimed that "he didn't believe any man in London could play the cursed thing."

"Please let me try it," said Ned in his usual quiet manner.
"You try it!" said the band master, "indeed, what do you imagine you can do with that?" Don't you know that is one of the most difficult passages ever written?"
"Well," said Ned, "I think I can play it. I would like to try any way.'

"Then try it if you choose to make a fool of yourself," said the master.

Ned observed the sly glances passed between the several members of the band, but he took no notice at all. Drawing his tall manly form to its full height as one fully conscious of his superiority and mishing the high conscious constitution is superiority. conscious of his superiority and wishing to punish the coxcomb who had treated him with so much contempt, he calmly waited the signal and the playing commenced.

The shrill, silvery tones from Ned's bugle now pealed forth with all his accustomed power and skill, the members all as one "Who are you, sir," exclaimed the master as soon as the solo was ended.

"My name is Kendall" quietly answered "What, Ned Kendall of Boston?"

"Yes, sir," replied Ned, "that is my name."
"And why didn,t you tell me before?"
"Because you didn't ask me," replied The discomfited band master removing his hat now extended his hand at the same time begging a thousand pardons for his rudeness, for, said he "you are not only the greatest player in America but in the known

The challenge was promptly accepted, and the meeting took place in the presence of the Queen, Prince Albert, and a large collection of the lords and nobles of the realm. A correspondent of the New York Evening Post tells how to escape seasickness on an ocean voyage. He says: I should be laughed at if I claimed to have found a sovereign remedy for seasickness. I do claim, however, to have found a remedy which so far has been sovereign in my ewn case, and my case heretofore has been desperate; it may be considered worthy of trial. All that is need-ed is self-control; preserve that for five min-utes and you are saved. With the first approach of the enemy there comes invaria-bly a bracing up of nerves and muscles against him. If at that time the patient will examine himself, he will find that he has unconsciously stiffened and tightened all his chest and abdominal muscles.
